St. Lezin said that in the latter part of 1973 there was money available at an 81/2 per cent interest rate. He predicted this rate would probably remain the same until about July or August when rates may climb.

George Haley, senior vice president for Bank of America, on the other hand, said, We feel there will be plenty of money available throughout 1974. It won't be as cheap as two years ago," he said. 'But it won't be as expensive as two months ago, either.

Haley predicted that the prime rate would "soften" in the first quarter of 1974, and begin to "firm up" in the last half of the year.

Police Get Prize: Station Wagon

The South San Francisco's Police Department is richer by one station wagon, thanks to a local resident who likes to enter contests.

Donor of the gift is Paul S. Bethscheider of 220 Verano Drive, South San Francisco. He operates an ice cream store in Daly City.

"The police department gets knocked so often." his wife commented, "he was glad that he could do something worthwhile for them.

Bethscheider won two 1973 Plymouth Station Wagons in the Colgate "Police Surgeon" Sweepstakes, with one going to him and the other to the police department of his choice, to be utilized for emergency community needs.

He has won several other contests in the past, acquiring television sets and cars, as he followed his hobby of entering contests.

Police Capt. Jim Datzman recalls how back in February, Bethscheider came into the station and "asked if we would like to have a free station wagon.

His first thought was, "Oh, oh, one of those fellows!

To his surprise, however, Bethscheider really had a station wagon to present, which was confirmed in a letter from the Colgate-Palmolive Co. It took them until October, however, to obtain delivery on the vehicle. All it cost the city was tax, license and title fees.

The station wagon is specially equipped for field sergeants to use. Whenever any patrolmen need some help, or reports an injury accident, the field sergeant responds with the station wagon, which contains special medical and other emergency equipment, as well as fingerprint kits, photographic gear and other investigative equipment.

Dec. 17, a grateful South San Francisco City Council approved a resolution of appreciation for Mr. and Mrs. Bethscheider.

Police Chief Sal Rosano accepted the framed resolution, explaining that Bethscheiders were not there to accept it because Bethscheider is critically ill, and his wife could not leave his side.

Fassler Chides Request for Representation Guidelines

County Supervisor Jean Fassler charged Dec. 18 that a request by her colleagues for guidelines relating to functions of members of the board of supervisors as representatives on her governmental agencies resulted from her action as a member of the County Agency Local Agency formation Commission in approving withdrawal of a number of cities and special districts from the San Mateo County Harbor District.

"We might as well call a spade a spade," Mrs. Fassler stated at last week's board meeting.

"It's obvious this has stemmed from the Harbor Commission. I have been informed that perhaps I could change my vote, that I would like to resign (from LAFCO), or that I can be replaced (on LAFCO).

Mrs. Fassler referred to a request by the board of Supervisors that County Mgr. M. D. Tarshes submit suggested guidelines for board policy relative to actions taken by regional and other intergovernmental bodies on which board members sit as representatives of the county. The guidelines were adopted unanimously.

bers were opposed to the September LAFCO action which authorized proceedings for the de-annexation of a total of 10 cities and special districts from the harbor district.

In an action last August, a majority of the supervisors indicated its support for ohe harbor district, noting that the electorate had voted in 1970 to retain the district.

Subsequently, LAFCO voted 3 to 2 to permit the withdrawal action. Mrs. Fassler, along with public member Emory Morris and city representative Mary Henderson, voted to approve the withdrawals. Another member of the supervisors, Gerald F. Day, and McRobert L. Steward, another city representative, voted against the withdrawals.

In his report to the board, Tarshes called on the opinions of Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson.

Sorenson reported that board members serve on boards and commissions which have two types of responsibilities - legislative Policy and quasi-judicial decisions.

appropriate for the board, if tion, I can hardly act on instructions to members regarding matters of a legislative policy being considered by regional and other inter-governmental bodies.

However, he said members of the board cannot be completely bound by such instructions, since an elected legislator cannot be mandated to express himself or to vote in a certain manner.

If, in such a situation, a board member does not reflect the adopted policies of the board, there is available the remedy of changing board representation, Sorenson said.

Another possible remedy, he reported, is for board members to appear at legislative policy hearings to express the views of the board or individual views.

He suggested that, in order to minimize legal questions, he could instruct the board and the representative member regarding proper prodedures, including instruction to refrain from voting on a matter involving board policies.

Mrs. Fassler, in her comments concerning the policy request, stated that, "unless He said that it would be the board has taken a posi-

> Supervisor William H. Royer said he, as a new member of the board, wanted the opinion on policy, 'and that's the only reason as far as I'm concerned."

But Mrs. Fassler wasn't through, although she eventually joined in voting for the policy guidelines.

"If this kind of procedure is going to be used," she "you've got a problem. The board shouldn't try to put the heat on members, it's a very difficult position to place us in.

"I take exception," Board Chairman Robert St. Clair stated. "The majority should rule. In this issue four members of the board felt a particular way. It is fair to express amongst ourselves our particular feelings and

This can be handled through removal or reconsidered vote.

Council Candidates Begin Filing

South San Francisco's City Council race in March might be a five-way contest, as Elmer Hitchcock, 2449 Greendale Drive, took out nomination papers Dec. 17.

Meanwhile, Leo Padreddii, a South San Francisco school board member, became the second person to file his The first was Counpapers. cilman Bill Borba, who filed the first day.

Papers are still out to Councilman Pat Ahern and Bill Battaglia.

Hitchcock ran in May's special election. He is president of a condominium homeowners' association.

There will be two seats at stake in the March 5 race. In San Bruno, as of 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, eight persons had taken out papers for the municipal election there One, Ralph Manchego, filed, as of that same hour. All incumbents have now taken out papers, Councilman Tony Governale doing so Dec. 12: Councilman Neil Christal Dec. 17.

Others who already had taken out nomination papers include Mayor Marge Kozkowski, Richard Griffith, Henry Siddall, Michael McLeod and Gary Mond-

'A Cozy Spot'

Once long ago, a boy named Mattrup Jensen left his home in Ohio to seek his fortune in Alaska. There, cn Alaska, he found not adventure, but sickness and disappointment. With his money, nearly gone and his body racked with pneumonia, he left Alaska to make his way through Washington and Oregon and still southward until he reached a village called Colma where he found both adventure and pleasure.

Circumstances, however, ordained that he leave Colma and travel home, which he did by a circular route through Los Angeles, Texas, New Orleans and Chicago.

Soon after he reached his Ohio town, he got married and started to build a home - but the haunting memories of Colma, California and indeed the whole San Francisco peninsula would not leave him. Finally, he talked his wife, Stella and his parents to migrate to California with him.

For a few months the Mattrup Jensens lived in San Jose, but the sand hills of the Colma-Daly City area and the peace of the Colma cemeteries called him until when he moved his family to a home near the memorial parks.

YEARS LATER when Colma was called Memorial Park he wrote that he had built his house in an area where he found "sunbeams - soul entrancing" and where "Mother nature has given her fairest — where mother earth responds with her rarest — and life seems here to be the squarest.

The caliber of his life in the Colma-Daly City area is expressed in his poem "Our Old Fashioned Home" - "As we turn the latch on the Old Home Door,

And hear it click shut, as in days of youre; Against the world of cares, with hardship and strife Tis the greatest treat, in our journey of life."

Let all the passers - by who speak of our fog and "little boxes" pause long enough to learn that many, like Mattrup Jensen, were happy to build their homes in Northern San Mateo County. Like him, they found it a place where "friends might come in" where "ties might be made," where one can feel "very proud and elated." Like him they found that their Colma or Daly City home could be "the cozyiest spot" on earth.

The houses of Daly City-Colma are homes, not little boxes. People live in them and love them with the ardor that resembles that described by Mattrup Jensen. Thus, it is not surprising to find senior-citizens who are natives of the area - or people who maintain their home in either Daly City or Colma although they work elsewhere in the Peninsula

IT IS NOT surprising to find in the history of the area the records of men and women who devoted long hours to civic betterment with little more renumeration than a few dollars for expenses and an occasional trip to represent a governmental unit at a conference. Like Mattrup Jensen, such people are builders and are proud to say - "I have been instrumental in making one spot on this old world a little more feautiful than I found it.

Daly City-Colma may well be called a land of homes and home-loving people. This is and always has been its chief characteristic - as quoted in our history - "The Gateway to the Peninsula." The people of the area have called this part of the world a land of "Happy hearts homes and headway.

'The brightest nugget in the Golden state." "A place to be if you like a progressive community." "A place of quiet streets, schools and of comfortable middle-class track

It is foolish before such sentiments to speak of the area with such ugly words as "housing mess and slurb - Let he who would do so meet the people who like Mattrup Jensen have found what he called Colma — "The only city of its kind in the world.

> Until last spring the wilderness school ran smoothly with the federal grants that we acquired. June 15, 1973, funds were denied, five of the six instructors were forced to leave and find new jobs and the entire Wilderness School future was in jeopardy

Last September Reno Taini, the remaining instructor came to school determined to make the Wilderness School survive without the $5,000 the school once had. With four aides from the previous semester and 25 new students, the Wilderness School was on the move again. A trip to the Willits Boy Scout Reservation was quickly planned.

Now the Urban project is moving well, the farm is progressing steadily and the Environmental Model is still working as an eco system.

Rose R. Brown is the Community Dental Coordinator for Our Lady of Guadalupe Health Center. Her duties at the Health Center include: to coordinate with the University of California School of Dentistry in making Our Lady of Guadalupe Health Center available as an in-community training site for advanced dental and dental hygiene students: to recruit and schedule volunteer dentists, students and instructors, to work with the dentists in providing an incommunity training site for dental assistants; to develop and maintain all "operating" systems (i.e., medical records, community education, liaison with other professionals); and to perform normal duties of a licensed dental hygienist as time and work load permits.

Rose is originally from Middletown, Ohio. She spent 11 byears in Washington, D.C. and recently moved to the Bay Area from Portland, Oregon. She is a member of the Black American Community and her interests include boating and reading science fiction and contemporary literature. Rose maintains that her primary interest is people; she adds that all her life she has been very "people oriented.

HER IMMEDIATE goal is to continue to provide high quality care in a personable manner to the patients who receive dental ervices. Her long range goal is to travel in foreign countries and enjoy the cultures of different people.

She added "I have entertained many foreign guests in my home and developed cultural exchange organizations for toreign students and visiting dignitaries.

I asked Rose to describe the most satisfying facet of her job. She replied, "Meeting people and having the feeling that you are providing a needed service." She became interested in Dentistry whikle in grade school in Ohio. Her dentist gave heria dollar for every "A" she received.

She advises that people can take better care of their teeth by brushing and flossing (using dental floss) daily and seeing a dentist every six months, or as often as prescribed

Rose ended by saying "There is a strong emphasis on preventative care in Dentistry.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Tis the day after Christmas and isn't it grand to relax and enjoy the no rush, no hurry feeling? Let's have a cup of coffee and talk about a way of using a bit of left over turkey to make a royal dish.

KING TURKEY 2 cups diced, cooked turkey

- 14 cup butter or margarine 12 cup sliced mushrooms
- $^{1}4\,$  cup chopped green onions
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper (if desired)
- 14 cup flour
- 14 teasoon salt 14 teaspoon paprika
- 14 teaspoon poultry seasoning pinch of pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 12 cup stuffed green olives, sliced

6 English muffins

Melt the fourth cup butter in large skillet. Add the half cup sliced mushrooms and the fourth cup each green onions and green pepper and saute until golden brown. Stir in the fourth cup flour, fourth teaspoon each salt, paprika and poultry seasoning, a dash of pepper and blend well. Gradually add the two cups milk, stirring constantly and cook slowly 5 minutes or until mixture thickens. Add the two cups diced turkey and the half cup sliced olives. Heat thoroughly and serve over muffin halves. Serves 6.

It is very likely that you also have some cranberry sauce left from Christmas dinner. By combining it with sour cream and raspberry gelatin, you present it in a different and most delicious way

CRANBERRY RASPBERRY MOLD

1 package raspberry gelatin, 3 oz.

1 can cranberry sauce, whole, drained

12 pint sour cream

Dissolve the three ounces gelatin in one-half cup hot water: stir until thoroughly dissolved, then add one cup cold water. Allow to thicken and then fold in the half pint sour cream and the drained cranberry sauce. Pour into mold and chill in refrigerator until firmly set.

NOTE: Although this recipe calls for a full can of cranberry sauce, it's a very flexible recipe and you may use just what you have. It'll just be a bit less cranberry-ish. Also if you have any plain cranberry sauce in addition to the whole variety, just blend that in too, it will add to the delicious flavor. Since I won't be with you until next year, let me take this space to wish to each of you the happiest of New Year's, filled with peace, health and love.

Hillsdale High, paced by clutch performances in the last four matches, came from behind to down Terra Nova 33-30 in a non-league wrestling match Wednesday.

The Knights were down 30-12 with just four matches left but came up with two pins, a decision and a forfeit to pull the win out of the fire.

In other non-league matches, San Mateo ran roughshod over Half Moon Bay 56-9 and Aragon beat Woodside 35-29 in a forfeitfilled match.

Jamie Sibold took a pin in 177's, Matt Martinelli an 11-7 win in 165's and the Knights got a forfeit in 191's.

That left Hillsdale down 30-27 with one match. Mario Haber, subbing for an injured regular heavyweight, pinned his man in 2:34 to cap the comeback.

LOCAL NOTES:

Latest report on that ridiculous selection method for all-league concocted by the winning NPL coaches this year: The Board of Managers, made up of the league's principals, has ordered that henceforth all selection processes for allleague selections must be approved by them. They too were dismayed over the tactics used by the coaches to select allleague football players this year.

Former Terra Nova wrestler John Fritz (177 lbs.) is having an outstanding year at Skyline College as a freshman, and this after he had determined not to go out for the sport in college, and then finally turning out only to "keep

Terra Nova, in defference to the energy crisis, cancelled all of its night basketball games for this season, whereby the Pacifica Park, Beach & Recreation Commission, sensing an opportunity to expand its program, announced that THEY would be using the gym on the nights of the dropped TN basketball dates.

IN THE JANUARY (1974) issue of Basketball Digest. writer Jerry Conway picks the five most over-rated stars in pro basketball - and 40 per cent of them are Warriors!

Conway figures that Rick Barry and Jeff Mullins belong on the mythical team. Barry, he says, can't do it all like he could before he vaulted the NBA. Since his return, says Conway, Barry is "strictly offensive now." He quotes one writer as saving Barry's shooting has even fallen off.

Conway is even less kind to Mullins, a man who he says could never do much else but shoot, and is now just "a little above average" even in that category.

Mullins isn't having the kind of season where we could very well defend him, but Conway must have been sitting on an expanding telescope when he evaluated Barry, who is merely playing the best all-around game of his career this year. Barry is among the top 20 scorers, averaging better than 20 points a game, is shooting at a better than 90 per cent free throw clip, is third in the league in steals and ninth in assists, and is doing his fair share of rebounding

If you're interested, the other three most over-rateds are Connie Hawkins ("inconsistent"). Oscar Robertson ("A ghost of what he once was") and Gail Goodrich ("He can't play defense")

ANOTHER PLAYER who was supposed to be vastly over-rated as a collegian coming into the pro ranks was Ernie DeGregorio. He's not only scoring quite adequately. he's leading the NBA in assists, averaging eight a game Conway must have rated him, too.

CREDIT TERRA Nova High basketball coach Bud Bresnahan with the basketball prognostication of the year. When many were making pre-season predictions that the USF Dons could be the best team in the country, he was shaking his head and saying, like Conway, "Over-rated, over-rated . . . they're too slow.'

Unlike Conway, Bresnahan has been spectacularly

SPEAKING OF USF's basketball misfortunes, correct us if we're wrong. According to our calculations, Joe Ellis is the only former Don in the NBA. And the only ex-USF'er in the ABA is Erwin Mueller.

BASKETBALL DIGEST, incidentally, isn't all bad. It conducted a poll of basketball experts to name the NBA's all-time best backcourt, and it came up with the combo of Bob Cousey and Bill Sharman, a choice with which we

WHAT we can't figure out about John Brodie's farewell was whether the fans were cheering him out of respect or because they were glad to finally be rid of him. Well, now they won't have Brodie to kick around, anymore.

IT SUDDENLY occurs to us that Jimmy Johnson is probably the best in football at almost - but not quite interfering with pass receivers. His timing, body control and "feel" over the years have been fantastic, as he always seems to be about ready to climb all over a receiver's back, but always just seems to miss by a paper-thin margin. And who knows? Maybe he hasn't always missed.

He has evidently gotten so good at the art that officials give him the benefit of the doubt, figuring, that their chances of being wrong are greater than Johnson's; just as umpires always supposedly gave Ted Williams the benefit of the doubt on close pitches, because of the reputation he had for phenomenal eye-sight.

ANOTHER ONE of our old heros is gone. Emil "Six Yard" Sitko, the great Notre Dame All American running back of the mid to late '40's.

He died at age 50 in his native Fort Wayne, Indiana. last week, and the wire service report didn't even have the decency to credit him with his most famous nick-name. They instead tagged him with his secondary and far less colorful nom de guerre of "Red."

We saw Sitko play only in newsreels and briefly with the 49ers in 1950, but he captured our imagination with that 'six-yard' label. And it was no fraud, by God. During four years as a varsity runner for the Fighting Irish, he averaged 6.1 yards per carry, and was second in Notre Dame rushing annals only to the immortal George ("Ronnie Reagan") Gipp.

Dammit, six yards a carry for four years is fine running in any league, any era, and the man dies and they call him "Red." But then what could one expect out of a sporting world in which all the Yankee Clippers and Sultans of Swat and Galloping Ghosts and Manassa Maulers and Brown Bombers have been relegated to ancient history, too.

WHEN, on the day that O.J. Simpson broke Jimmy Brown's single season rushing record, statisticians discovered that he fell just short of another 200 yard day, which would have given him another record, they frantically reanalyzed the day's stats and discovered that Simpson had, indeed, picked up three more yards than he had originally been given credit for, which were good enough for the 200 plus and the other record.

Thus was proven again our old contention - formulated during our own days as a football statistician - that keeping football statistics is, along with psychiatry, one of the world's most inexact sciences, and that any hero who really needs an extra few yards can always legitimately and with honor get them from enthusiastic statisticians.

HOTSTOVE NOTES: One of this year's most ignored sports records is Dave Johnson's 43 homeruns, breaking Rogers Hornsby's record for most homers by a second baseman. Having stood for 51 years, that was one of the oldest records in the books . . . The Cubs offered Ron Santo for Dave Kingman, but the Giants wanted more, and they

ALTHOUGH THE basketball coaches were not represented at the meeting (strange, eh?), one principal says the coaches were consulted . . . and were in favor of the proposal.

A great prep basketball rivalry may or may not have been laid to rest for another meet for a third time. A good number of the 1,000 or more spectators at Saturday night's title game of the first Serra Invitational undoubtedly wouldn't mind a posititive answer. That would be another rematch between Hillsdale and the host Padres, who dominated early and then held on late for a 64-57 victory before the tourney's second packed house in two nights. Woodside knocked off Carlmont. 38-34, in the consolation game.

Serra (8-1) snapped an eight-game Hillsdale win streak and has given the Knights (9-2) both their losses

'I'd love to play 'em again,'' said Serra Coach Pete Newell, referring to a possible third showdown in the regionals.

"It would be great," said Hillsdale coach Bill Wilkin. "You never know." The Knights are strong Mid-Peninsula League favorites, while the Padres are but one of four evenly matched contenders in the rough West Catholic Athletic League. Not surprisingly, Serra center Buzz Harnett and Hillsdale guard Rod Williams were the standouts in a field of standouts. Both are returning Times' all-county play-

Led by Harnett, fellow all-tourney pick fellow all-tourney pick Ron Jackson and guard John Caselli, Serra had constant control until just under two minutes remained in the third quarter, where the Padres held a 45-26 lead.

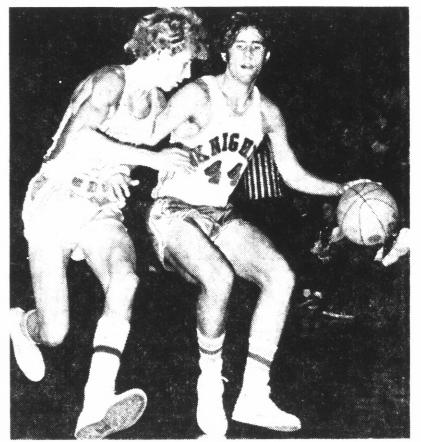

But then Williams, helped by Kevin McCoy (another all-tourney selectee) and sixth man Carl McIntyre, brought the Knights back with his shooting after an effective press and troubles at the line had taken the steam out of Serra.

McCoy climaxed a 22-5 string with a bucket for 50-48 with 2:36 left. However, clutch free-throw shooting by Padre junior Mike O'Regan, Harnett, and a break-away basket off a steal by Jim Doherty in the next minute choked off the rally

IN CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING PROMOTION IN EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S 1973 INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

The Times and Post Classified Advertising Department won the First Place Award for Overall Classified Advertising Promotion in Editor & Publisher's 1973 International Competition for newspapers with a circulation between 25,000 and 50,000. The Promotion Program included editorial, research and promotional material. One of the highlights of the year, was a High School Ad Writing Contest sponsored by the San Mateo-Burlingame Board of Realtors and co-sponsored by The Times. Students from every high school in San Mateo and Burlingame participated. Prizes were awarded totaling $550.

The Times receives Award of Excellence for the promotion of International Want Ad Week!

The Times Classified Advertising Department was also honored in the same Editor & Publisher 1973 International Competition for their promotion of International Want Ad Week The International Want Ad Exhibits included full page promotions featuring models (courtesy of the Emporium) visiting foreign countries. The theme "Want Ads—A World of Results" was tied in with a Travel Directory and a "Find Your Name Contest" directed to subscribers. A total of $300 in classified advertising was awarded to Times subscribers who found their name in the classified section.

The Times

The Times and Post Classified Advertising Department has now won 14 First Place Awards in various competitions in the past 14 years.
